MASQUERADE PARTY.

The popular younger set held a very enjoyable masquerade party at Emmanuel Parish House last Monday evening. Some very fine and unique costumes appeared at this time and the happy assemblage tripped the light fantastic until the "wee small' hours" on Tuesday morning. This is the bunch that have a good time and when they start out for a pleasant evening none are dissapointed.

SMOKER AND LUNCH.

The members of Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A., No. 382, held a very enjoyable smoker and luncheon at the Camp Rooms last Monday evening. A goodly number of the Camp members were present and had a very pleasant time.

MISS LEADBETTER ENTERTAINS.

On Monday evening, the home of Miss Francis ("Duckie") Leadbetter was the scene of much merry making, at which time Miss Leadbetter entertained several of her Emporium friends. This home is an ideal place for a good time and "Duckie" makes a charming hostess. All present report a fine time.

The Great Pennsylvania Station.

On Sunday next the wonder of modern times, the erection of the great Pennsylvania Station at New York City will be opened to the public, after which date all through trains, will start from and arrive at the Pennsylvania station—one block from Broadway. We have before us a beautiful booklet, descriptive of the world's greatest undertaking, exclusive of the Panama canal. What a great pity it is that the late A. J. Cassett, the originator of the huge undertaking, could not live to see its completion.

Same Old Story; Tariff For Revenue.

Democratic Leaders Line up on That Program.

The revision of the tariff, upon the plan of a tariff for revenue only, is to be the aim of the democrats.

This announcement was made to-day by several democratic leaders of influence in the party's affairs, and following the receipt of the following telegam from Representative Underwood of Alabama, one of the prominent democratic leaders:

"I favor a tariff for revenue only. I believe the difference in labor and cost of production of manufactured articles at home and abroad would be covered by a tariff that raised a sufficient revenue to support the government economically administered.

"I am opposed to protecting profits and because I believe protecting profits means protecting a monoply."

Faithful Employee.

The PRESS sanctum was on Saturday last, honored by a social visit from our old and esteemed friend the venerable James O'Day, of East Emporium. Although well advanced in years, now being almost 68 years old, he has for 37 years been a faithful member of the repair crew of the Pennsy R R., at the Junction, in the department managed by Mr. Elmer Klock, than whom there is no more competent employee of the Pennsy, kind and popular with his men, yet firm in the direction of his department. Mr. O'Day is profuse in his praise and admiration of his foreman. Long may they both live, for they are an honor to our town.

"Human Hearts."

"Human Hearts" the melodramatic success announced at the Emporium Opera House appeals to every class of playgoers. It deals with a story that teems the heart from beginning to end. "Tom Logan" an honest young blacksmith in the Arkansas Hills, falls in love with and marries a reformed confidence woman. The dull country life soon palls on her. She accidentally meets her former lover and pal. Without cause they conspire together to ruin Tom and kill him if necessay. The woman calls him while her accomplice conceals himself. The father of Tom responds and is mistaken for the "Young Blacksmith." He is fatally stabbed by the ambushed man. Tom, coming out to see where his father is, is accused by the adventuress and her "pal" of the murder. He is finally sentenced on that charge. But his friends ultimately establish his innocence and he is released. Retribution overtakes his villainous and murderous accusers. No play of its kind possesses a stronger plot or more sensational incidents. The serious element is mingled with comedy, forming a combination that never fails to touch a responsive chord in the hearts of playgoers.

Chinese and Coolie Competition.

China is sending pig iron to the United States and is getting ready to produce many other things with the starvation wages paid in that country. A beet sugar manufacturing company is completing a factory at Harbin to produce 28,900 pounds of sugar each day. Other factories already in operation. Can American farmers raise beets and can Americans produce sugar in competition with the Chinese and Japanese without protection.

An official report from Trinidad says that coolies are employed on the estates on that island, and that the highest pay for laborers is 36 cents per day for men and 24 cents for women. The United States imports nearly $5,000,000 annually from Trinidad of articles produced by labor paid at the rates mentioned.

An official report from the United States commercial agent in Barbadoes says that "laborers earn 30 to 40 cents a day at farm work, the women getting half as much." They go barefooted and wear cotton cloths the year round. Free-Traders want American laborers put on a level with such foreign workers.—American Economist.

Superintendent N. C. Schaeffer, of the State School Department, in an address to the teachers of Franklin county on Tuesday, referred to the great number of foreigners coming into the State and said that the large majority were studious and industrious and that unless the American boys looks to his laurels the foreign-born boy will take his place in the vocations of life. In many cases, he said, education to the American boy means nothing else but baseball, football, evening balls and highballs.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

MILLER.

MRS. BESSIE MILLER, daughter of Mrs. Justin Miller, died at the family residence on Huston Hill, Thursday, November 3rd, 1910, aged about twenty-six years. Miss Bessie was left an invalid at the age of eight, from the affects of scarlet fever, but was a very patient sufferer; was only bed fast four days. The family have the sympathy of all, for it is only a little over a year since the youngest daughter of the family, Miss Lois, died. The funeral was held at the family residence, Saturday, Nov. 5th, at 3 p. m., Rev. Ebersole, officiating, after which the remains were conveyed to Hicks Run and laid to rest in Hicks Run cemetery. She is survived by the following brothers and sisters: O D Miller, of Olean, Mrs. C. E. Barr, of Huston Hill; Mrs. W. E. Barr, Hicks Run, and Benj. H., at home.

Mrs. Miller and family desire to thank all for their kindness and sympathy.

LEVERING.

Grant Levering, aged 40, died at Elmira, N Y., on Saturday last after a short illness. Deceased was well and favorably known in both Emporium and Coudersport, having visited here repeatedly. His wife, formerly Maud Pearsoll, survives him. Frank H. Pearsoll and Josiah A. Fisher left Emporium on Sunday for Elmira, to attend the funeral, which was held on Monday. The PRESS and many Emporium citizens deeply sympathize with the bereaved wife.

Educational Train.

Continuing its efforts to create added interest in scientific farming in the agricultural districts through which it operates, the Pennsylvania Railroad is carryingon anactive campaignthis winter with its special educational trains, the first of which will be operated on Saturday, November 26th, on what is known as the Bedford Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania was the first railroad in the East to operate farmers educational trains. In the past three years almost every division of the railroad has been visited, and its boat lines on the Chesapeahe Bay have had special educational steamboats on which lectures were delivered.

Food For Digestion.

Democratic Tariff laws have been tried twice. Both times everything was cheap! Neither time did labor have the price to buy.—Eaton (O.) Register.

A Kansas farmer bought a lumber wagon for $60, in 1894, paying for it with 600 bushels of corn. He went to the same dealer for another wagon the other day, and objected to the price, $70. The dealer said: "Bring in 600 bushels of corn, as you did in 1894, and I'll give you the wagon and a surrey, a twine-binder, a kitchen range and an outfit of kitchen furniture.—Baraboo (Wis.) Republican.

The most nonsensical claptrap yet put forth is the pretense that high Tariff is responsible for the high cost of what goes into the workingman's dinner bucket. The Tariff has no more to do with the price of bread, butter. eggs, meat, fruits, etc., than it has with the altitudinous location of the moon. If it were not for a protective Tariff half of the dinner buckets would be rusty from disuse.—Kansas City Journal.

Look Who's Coming.

President Taft or our genial Ex-President Roosevelt may not visit our city on their coming tour of the country but Messrs. Hillbourn-Whittier, the well known Theatrical firm, have arranged with the managment of the Emporium Opera House to bring their well known comedy drama, "The Bowery Detective," to our city on Tuesday evening, Nov. 29.

This time tried production will be presented in its entirety, the best cast of characters ever put together to interpret a play, all new and special scenery befitting the locality the scene is laid in, and a grand array of head line vaudeville acts will be presented during the action of the piece.

There will be no increase in the prices of admission for this stupendous attraction, prices will remain as usual and reserved seats can now be secured at Harry Lloyd's. Remember "The Bowery Detective" will only appear here one night Tuesday, Nov. 29, this season so avail yourself of the opportunity of seeing this comedy treat.

Emporium Social Club.

The members of the Emporium Social Club will hold their next dance at the opera house on Wednesday evening, November 30th. These dances will continue, whenever it is possible, every two weeks on Wednesday evening.

Cameron County Should be Well Represented.

There is an institution of the State that has been established exclusively for the public, and for the benefit of every citizen in the Commonwealth. It is the State Museum at Harrisburg, where a collection is being made of every kind of mineral, animal, bird, insect, flower, specimen of tree, and historical relic from each county of the State.

Cameron County should be well represented in this institution, which is laying a foundation invaluable for future years. The purpose of the various divisions of the museum is as follows:

DIVISION OF ZOOLOGY.

Where can be seen the animals in their respective haunts and natural surroundings; many valuable features for the agriculturist, where information may be obtained in reference to the birds, insects and animals of the locality that are helpful or destructive to the crops.

DIVISION OF GEOLOGY.

Since Pennsylvania is rich in minerals, there should be placed before the people of the Commonwealth one of the best State mineral exhibits found in the Union. This should include mineralogy, paleontology and industrial geology. Each county in the State should be well represented by its respective minerals, the coals, irons, oils, clays, glass sands, building stones, etc., with maps and charts showing where located. The educational and industrial should be closely allied to be of use to the Commonwealth There should be maps, charts and fossils of the geological era, portraying the earliest formations known, including the glacial period, upheavals, mountain and valley making, rivers and lakes of the State, with relief maps and models showing strata formations, etc.

A DIVISION OF BOTANY.

with specimens helpful in learning the different species of trees, their uses and their woods; the care of forest preserves, as well as the flowers and plants used for beautifying or for their chemical and medical qualities. Many fossil plants of the coal fields of Pennsylvania are on exhibition at the Museum. With the realization of the Capitol Park extension, it would be pleasing to see every tree, shrub and flower native in the State planted and labeled, as far as practicable, within its grounds.

DIVISION OF ARCHAEOLOGY.

Pennsylvania should be well known by a collection from the contents of mounds that have been unearthed, which tells of an early people inhabiting the State, antedating the American Indian. These implements of history, arts and crafts should be gathered at the Musem, that our present and future generations could have a more definite knowledge of these early peoples. Following this, the American Indian collection should be arranged and preserved. There are several good collections in the State, now obtainable, and in a few years these may be scattered and lost. They should be arranged to show their manner of living, arts and crafts in war and peace; monuments, implements, inscriptions, relics, dwellings, clothing and food obtained from their surroundings, each properly shown in its relation to the other. Maps of their paths over the State; origin and meaning of the many Indian names of cities and towns, rivers, etc., throughout the State Then follow with the customs and arts of the early European settlers, and the implements of their arts, crafts, etc. This influence was the nucleus around which the moulding of our early history of the State was formed. The early publications, German pie plates, and the hand printing should also be shown.

There are historic relics of war and peace in which the State is very rich. Many good collections are scattered throughout the State, and should find a home in the museum. There are also many unmarked historical spots in each county of the State which should not be neglected. Either the State or historical society of each county, should see that these are authentically and intelligently labeled, even if only with a small bronze tablet on a boulder, so that they may not be lost to posterity.

USEFUL AND FINE ARTS

Pennsylvania from its earliest times has produced articles from the looms, print shops and the forge. The Museum wishes to make a fine collection of the articles, including those of exquisite make of the present day. These will include printing, book-binding and photography; textiles in cotton, wool, silk and linen, pottery, glass, terra cotta, porcelain, mosaiac, ceramics and glazing. Articles of metals, bronze, leather and wood. All of these articles to be of Pennsylvania make only.

There are many persons in Cameron county having relics pertaining to Pennsylvania, which they wish to preserve for posterity; there is no more fitting place to preserve and display these to the public than at the State Museum at Harrisburg, where they will be well cared for and displayed. The Museum will be glad to receive any such material, either permanently or as a loan, in the following subjects, flora, fauna, minerals, geology, archaeology, arts and history. These should be well labeled, with the name of the specimen, location or any brief historical incident connected with it; the name and address of the donor should also accompany it. Address State Museum, Harrisburg, Pa.

Dangerous and Mischievous Practice.

EDITOR PRESS:—

Is there no way that our Borough authorities can punish, or fine, the boys who carry sling-shots, Flobert rifles, etc., and deliberately break window glass in private reeidences, barns and chicken coops? I have several times been compelled to replace glass in my barn and hen house, entailing an expense of at least eight dollars. I think the teachers of our schools should search each boy and take from all sling-shots, at the same time reporting their names to Sheriff Norris and chief Mundy. If I do not mistake the law imposes a heavy fine as well as the cost of damage.

Nov. 18th, 1910. H. W. GRAHAM.

We have received many complaints, lately, of boys throwing stones at private residences in their efforts to kill innocent English sparrows, thereby cracking if not breaking windows glass. Complaints have also been made to the PRESS, very recently, of boys actually shooting into the homes of our citizens. Our officers should promptly put a stop to this dangerous practice, notify the parents of the penalty. If this continues arrest the offenders and lock them up in jail. Parents who allow or purchase the dangerous "weapons" are moro to blame than the kids. One good dose of the law will finish it. If that does not try the jail.

Gone to California.

Wade Spence, who has conducted a farm on Moore Hill ever since his father's tragic death, has pulled up stakes and located in California. His nephew, Willie Mumford, has resigned his position with the Emporium Powder Co, and located on the farm, having purchased his uncle's interest in the same Will is an industrious young man and if hard work counts for anything he is sure to make good.

Transferred to Rochester.

We are pleased to hear that Harold M. Waddington, who for the past three months has been employed in the Engineering Department of New York Telephone Co., at Buffalo, N. Y., has been transferred to the Rochester Division, at Rochester, N. Y., as Assistant Chief Drattsman. We wish him success.

"Human Hearts."

Good plays, like wine, improves with age. This is certainly true of that marvellously successful melodrama "Human Hearts" which Manager Reno offers for the coming season. The company to be seen in the play this season comprises all of last year's favorites, and wherever a part could be improved upon, the change has been made, and it is promised that never before has this beautiful play been so well represented. "Human Hearts" give a pure, wholesome lesson that touches the heart-strings in the pathetic scenes and excites the risibilities in the humorous ones. The pathos and comedy are so well blended that the audience is in tears one moment and convulsed with laughter the next. The scenic equipment will be perfeet in every detail, so it is said, and the management has done everything to insure a first class performance.

K. of C. Meeting at Renovo.

A large number of Emporium Sir Knights attended a special session at Renovo last Sunday. The following from Emporium were in attendance: Frank McCloskey, Herbert Vogt, A. F. Vogt, Jos. Lechner, Chas. Farrel, Geo. Welsh, Daniel Welsh, John Heher, Ed. McCarthy, Geo. Costello, James Kearney, Mr. Law, Sidney Geary, Jas. Farrel, Harold Seger, Leo. Hayes, James Haley, Frank Erskine, Henry Hout, Peter Murray, P. H. Burke, and others whose names we were unable to secure.

Thanksgiving Ball.

All the plans and preparations are just about completed for the big annual Thanksgiving Ball given each year by the Mountaineer Hose Company. The dance promises to be the most successful ever given and all who have attended these dances in the past know what they are, and how successful they have been.

Purchase Your Ticket.

Have you purchased your ticket for the big Thanksgiving Ball to be given by the Mountaineer Hose Company at the opera house? The famous Germania Orchestra will be on hand to furnish the music and Seger and Company will furnish the refreshments. All who have not bought their tickets should get busy.

The M. E. Supper.

The above supper given last Thursday evening was a great success, over 360 tickets were sold and 360 persons were served, netting the church $85.15.

It took 40 chickens and 1,115 biscuit with side dishes to serve the people.

NOT DUE TO TARIFF

FACTS IN REGARD TO ADVANCE IN PRICES.

For Political Ends, Democrats Have Fostered Misconception in This Regard—The Truth as Shown by Government Statistics.

The tariff seems to have been no material factor in causing the advance in prices during the past decade. The greatest advances have been made in commodities upon which the tariff has little or no effect, and the absolute removal of the tariff on many of these commodities could not have afforded relief at the present time, for the reason that prices of these commodities, with a few exceptions, were as high or higher in other countries than in the United States.

The advance in prices during the past ten years appears to have no relation to tariff legislation. Beginning with January, 1900, wholesale prices in general declined slightly, and the decline continued through July, 1901. Beginning with August, 1901, prices advanced very slowly through March, 1903, and then remained steady through May, 1905. Beginning with June, 1905, there was a marked increase through October, 1907. Beginning with November, 1907, prices began to decline and the decline continued through August, 1908. Beginning with September, 1908, prices steadily advanced until the highest point during the ten years was reached in March, 1910.

The advance in 1909 as compared with 1900, by groups of articles, was as follows:

	Per Cent.
Products of the forests	40.3
Products of the farm, crude	36.1
Products of the farm, manufactured	24.2
Products of mines and wells	13.5
Products of manufactures	5.7
Products of the fisheries	5.1
Imported products declined	1.7

The group of articles which have shown the greatest advance—the products of the farm—are those for which there has been practically no change in tariff in the past ten years. Neither have there been any changes during the past twenty years which could in any way account for the increase in price. The tariff acts of 1894, 1897 and 1909 have made no changes which to any appreciable degree measure the changes in prices which have taken place.

The tariff act of 1909 made no marked changes in "farm products and foodstuffs," the articles grouped by the tariff acts under Schedule G, "agricultural products and provisions," and Schedule E, "sugar, molasses and manufactures of."

Simple Statement of Facts.

The principal farm grains—barley, corn, oats, rye and wheat—made an average advance in price in 1909, compared with 1900, of 69.7 per cent. They are usually exported in large quantities, yet while the exports were practically reduced in 1909, other countries absorbed our surplus even at the advanced prices, and the exports during 1909 amounted to over $80,000,000 with additional exports of over $50,000,000 worth of wheat flour and corn meal.

The price level of the live-stock group, consisting of cattle, hogs and sheep in 1909, was 26.1 per cent. above the price level of 1900. This group also furnishes a surplus for export and at the advanced prices the exports amounted to approximately $20,000,000.

This amount exported is much less than for previous years, but the fact that exports of products of the farm and of the forests continue in such large quantities indicates that the price movement is due not to the tariff but to a world-wide movement upward in the price of such commodities.

Which is the most inspiring sight, the parade of Coxey and Kelly armies or the march of factory and mill hands going to and from work?

Question for Workingman.

The Democrats compare prices now with prices in 1896, and tell laborers that we ought to get back to the old conditions. How does that strike any laboring man who lived through the four awful years of Democratic rule from 1893 to 1897? It didn't matter how low prices were then—millions of men were working on part time and low wages or not working at all, and their families were hungry. They couldn't get the money to buy even the necessaries of life.

Wm. McKinley said: "Cheap and nasty go together."

It didn't matter in the four awful Democratic years from '93 to '97 how cheap food was. Millions of our people then couldn't get money to buy even the necessaries of life.

The Democrats want the country to get back to the conditions when everything was cheap. Under such conditions labor is the cheapest thing of all.

Good Object Lesson.

The motto emblazoned on the great seal of one of our states is: "If you seek a beautiful peninsula, look around you." This motto might be paraphrased as a motto for the whole country: "If you seek a prosperous and happy people, look around you." The wan and wasted and hungry men and women and children that we used to see in the last Democratic days are not in evidence now. The working man's wife and babies are not now begging for bread.

FACTS ABOUT FREE TRADE

Read and Consider Which Policy Is Best for the Interests of the Country.

Here and there a Democratic candidate takes courage from the seeming drift toward his party and announces that he is for free trade—not for tariff reform, but for no tariff, except, possibly, for revenue only.

Such tariff doctrine gets far, indeed, from the faults and shortcomings of the Payne-Aldrich law, grievous and numerous as they are, in spite of its betterment of the statute it replaced and its promise of further improvement under orderly and scientific investigation and amendment. But when the issue becomes free trade, it is time to look certain vital facts squarely in the face.

Wage-earners migrate from free trade countries into protective tariff countries. They never go in the opposite direction. They know where they are best off. They migrate from England to the United States, to Canada, to Australia—all under protective tariffs. Belgium has near free trade. Belgian workmen go to France, where there is protection. Germany is making strenuous strides under protection, and Germany, already with an immense population, draws wage-earners from many adjacent and nearby countries.

These fundamental facts cry out against the folly of the free traders.—Cleveland Leader.

Prices Not Governed by Tariff.

An official bulletin issued by the bureau of statistics at Washington shows an unmistakable tendency downward in the price of certain commodities included among necessaries of life. What is particularly noticeable in this exhibit is the decrease in rates for imported articles. The bulletin says: "A study of prices quoted by the bureau of satistics shows for the latest available date a definitely marked downward movement in recent months." Of the articles affected there are mentioned wool, wool carpeting, boards, copper pigs and ingots, rubber, Manila hemp and a whole lot of other things which come from abroad. On the other hand, the same trend is indicated as regards numerous domestic products, among which may be mentioned various grains, flour, copper in different shapes, cotton cloths, steel billets, rails and other shapes, and so on. Of course many causes contribute to the fluctuations in prices which are reported in this country and elsewhere. But the direct and very pointed significance of the official report from the bureau of statistics is that it refutes most emphatically the contention that prices are governed by our tariff and that recent advances were due to the present law. And, further, the facts place the lay-it-all-to-the-tariff growlers in a dilemma from which there is no escape except by frank confession that they have been wrong. If, as they have asserted, the tariff sent prices up, must they not, to be consistent, admit that the tariff, which is still the same, has brought prices down? What is the logic of their argument, anyway?

Epigrammatic and Silly.

The college president who has dropped into politics and is trying to be elected governor of New Jersey keeps right on saying foolish things about the tariff. One of his latest absurdities is this:

"Trade does not rise and fall with the tariff, but the bank accounts of some producers do."

Herein we may see how easy it is to be epigrammatic and silly at one and the same time. Fourteen years ago, in the third year of a free-trade tariff, trade had fallen far below the normal. Trade had fallen with the tariff. Inside of eighteen months, or within less than a year after the election of McKinley as president and the prompt revision of the tariff in the Dingley law, trade had gotten back to the normal and was increasing by leaps and bounds. By 1900, bank clearings had nearly doubled, imports had increased 50 per cent., because our people had more to buy with, exports had increased far more than imports, and the country was on the top wave of prosperity. Trade had risen when the tariff rose. Dr. Woodrow Wilson simply displays his ignorance of practical business affairs when he asserts that there is no relation between trade and tariff. Every civilized nation in the world, save one, holds a contrary view—that protection to home labor and industry does stimulate trade and make prosperity.

It is better for the working man and his wife and babies that there be sufficient work for all than to have factories shut down or working on half time at half wages.

Has a Prize Collection.

Mr. Bryan now says the plan for a tariff commission is a delusion. As a delusion expert he ought to be entitled to a hearing.—Omaha Bee.

Panama.

The president's final decision about Panama shows his great interest in the canal. And the interest is justified. The tariff should soon be out of the way for awhile, and the trusts and the railroads may give further trouble, but cannot master us. The canal we shall have with us for at least five years in a completing form, and then in a completed form for, let us hope, as long as we remain a puissant factor in the world's affairs.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Postoffice Department May Pay Out

WASHINGTON.—The estimates of Postmaster General Hitchcock for next year show that the postoffice department promises fair to pay its own way. The mail service comes nearer to the people than any other branch of the government, for it reaches every home as well as shops and offices. It costs a lot of money. Mr. Hitchcock asks for $250,733,943, and the appropriation for the department always is set forth in the expenditures for each year, but the earnings from the mails bring back the outlay to the treasury. This business is not reported in the current daily statement of the treasury which set forth only the deficit paid. This amounted last year to $17,000,000, and will be $6,000,000 less for the current twelve months, while it is predicted that it will disappear in the next fiscal year. The department gets no pay for the vast tons of matter which it carries for other branches of the government. If it did the offset against the deficit would be very large. The rent of offices in Washington and in public buildings elsewhere does not cover this traffic.

The work done by the postoffice is a marvel of cheapness. In volume and in extent of territory covered there is nothing to be compared with it. The reduction in rates since the days when 25 cents was charged for a letter from New York to Columbus, O., does not cease to be a wonder. The system which for two cents delivers a message in writing weighing an ounce from Maine to San Francisco not only but to the Philippines, or from the southern point of Florida to the northern extremity of Alaska, is a model of efficiency at the minimum of cost. When we consider also the burden of mails oversea to certain countries where the foreign rates are the same with our domestic charge, the challenge is bold that the world presents no parallel to the economy and to the achievement.

Europe is compact in population with distances measured by hundreds of miles only. This is especially true of Great Britain. There penny postage is proclaimed as a triumph and an example. Americans forget that the British penny is the equal in current value of two cents of our money. The cent is often called a penny, but it is only half a penny, and thus the term is a misnomer. Our postal rates on letters are now just those of Great Britain. Penny postage has long prevailed here as well as there. That with free rural delivery and with transmission over the continent and to the islands, the earnings are to cover the expenses, may well gratify officials and citizens.

Has Plan to Care for Ex-Presidents

THE great movement for the conservation of the natural resources of the country, at the present time exerting salutary influences upon every important national activity, has embraced a new field. A safe, sane and successful method of conserving and finding a method of caring for our ex-presidents is the latest idea in the conserving line. A provision in the constitution of the national conservation congress is responsible for the proposal, and serious consideration is being given it, not by the political dreamer or theorist, but by the great public figures of the country.

Bernard N. Baker, retiring president of the congress, by virtue of a clause in the constitution, becomes a member for life of the executive committee, and will, so long as the congresses are held, continue to give the benefit of his counsel and experience to the president.

The suggestion has been made, and has already crystallized into an organized sentiment, to adopt the same method with the president of the United States, make him, for life, an advisory member of the president's cabinet and give him a competence sufficient to make him independent. Speaking of this proposal, Mr. Baker said that it was really surprising how many men there were in the west who thought that this method furnished the solution of the perpetual perplexing question as to what disposition to make of our ex-presidents.

"On its face the proposition is certainly a plausible one. It stands to reason that after a man has been president for four or eight years he knows the problems and difficulties which confront the man at the helm of the ship of state better than does his successor. If the ex-presidents could be made advisory members of the cabinet of the president, the latter would get the benefit of the advice of the former. No matter if there should be a change in the administration, this would make no difference to broad-minded men.

"Of course, there would have to be legislation providing that when a man is elected to the presidency his succession to the cabinet position necessarily follows. All this is not mere theory. It is indorsed by some of the political thinkers of the country."

Expert to Head the Economy Bureau

WHAT is considered a real step toward greater economy and more efficiency in the management of the government's business was taken when President Taft appointed Dr. Frederick A. Cleveland, director of the bureau of municipal research in New York city, as the head of a central staff that will work on the economy and efficiency problem under the direction of the president. Announcement was also made that each of the cabinet officers will organize in his department a committee or commission to be known as an economy and efficiency organization.

These steps were taken under the law passed at the last session of congress directing the president to conduct an investigation into the business methods of the several executive departments, and giving him $100,000 with which to carry forward the inquiry. The final plans were not approved by the president until he had consulted with a large number of business men and had received written suggestions from numerous audit companies.

The central staff, of which Mr. Cleveland is to be the chief, will be composed of four men in addition to the chief. Its function will be to keep the president informed as to conditions in the several departments. It might properly be called a bureau of inspection. The economy and efficiency commissions to be organized in each department will undertake to ascertain if greater efficiency can be obtained without increasing the cost of the service.

It is explained at the White House that the general movement does not contemplate the dismissal of government clerks, but the gaining of greater efficiency. The president has come to believe that the departments work at cross purposes in some instances and that it is frequently the case that in a particular department money is wasted because the service is not organized or centered as it should be.

Opium Invades Army at the Presidio

THE war department is advised that opium, the insidious enemy of the armies of the world, has invaded the ranks of the United States troops stationed at the Presidio, near San Francisco, to such an extent that a strong campaign, in which are involved more than 2,500 men, has been launched in an effort to crush it out.

The officers admit the seriousness of the situation, and declare it to be the gravest problem they have been called upon to settle. Drastic measures are now being taken to rescue those of the troops who have fallen victims to the subtle opiate. With all the energies of the department of war bent to the battle, an appeal has been made to the civil authorities.

Just how general the use of the poppy juice has become is not estimated, but it is admitted to be more alarming than ever before in the history of the army. Acting Commander Col. C. Deems said that in all his career he had never encountered such a general addiction to the drug, and that at worst his observation had never disclosed a higher percentage of opium using than two to three per cent. It was at first estimated that forty per cent. of the men at he Presidio were using the drug, but this was declared excessive, a more probable figure after company and hospital statistics had been compiled, being ten per cent.

Alarmed at this high percentage, appeals were directed by Colonel Lundeen, commandant at the post, to the district attorney's office and to the office of the chief of police, with the result that raids on opium dens by the civil authorities are being made.

In the service of a Baltimore family is an old negro cook known as Aunt Sally, and not the least of her achievement is the preparation of sea food.

In the kitchen one day Aunt Sally's nephew, a nine-year-old lad from a point where crabs are seldom seen, was watching in breathless interest the old lady's deviling of a dish of such crustaceans.

"Aunty," said he, after much reflection upon this mysterious point, "does debbil crabs come from de debbil?"

"No, chile," promptly responded Aunt Sally; "but dey is de debbil to make."

Lover's Wedding Cake.

Four pounds of our of love, half a pound of buttered youth, half a pound of good looks, half a pound of sweet temper, half a pound of self-forgetfulness, half a pound of powdered wits, half an ounce of dry humor, two tablespoonfuls of sweet argument, half a pint of rippling laughter, half a wineglassful of common sense.

Then put the flour of love, good looks and sweet temper into a well-furnished house. Beat the butter of youth to a cream. Mix together blindness of faults, self-forgetfulness, powdered wits, dry humor into sweet argument, then add them to the above. Pour in gently rippling laughter and common sense. Work it together until all is well mixed, then bake gently forever.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

RAILROAD HEAD RESIGNS

Marvin Hughitt, who has been president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company for nearly 24 years, has given up that position to accept the chairmanship of the board of directors. Mr. Hughitt, who is in his seventy-third year, is in many ways one of the most remarkable men in the railway service. There probably is no man in the railroad world today who is more widely known and yet about whom so little is known in detail as Mr. Hughitt. This is the result of a lifelong policy of doing things rather than of talking.

He was born in Genoa, Cayuga county, N. Y., in 1837, and began his career as a telegraph operator at Albany for the New York and Buffalo Telegraph company in 1852. In 1854 he located in Chicago and worked as an operator for the Illinois and Missouri Telegraph company. Mr. Hughitt entered the railway service in 1856, and until 1862 he was consecutively superintendent of telegraph and train master of the St. Louis, Alton and Chicago at Bloomington. From 1862 to 1864 he was superintendent of the southern division of the Illinois Central.

It was during the latter period that Mr. Hughitt performed an operating feat that has never been surpassed. The government suddenly called upon the road to move a large detachment of troops at a time when the road was flooded with traffic. The force became somewhat demoralized at the magnitude of the problem, whereupon Mr. Hughitt took his place at the dispatcher's key and performed the task without interruption to traffic, at the expense of 72 hours of continuous service. When he awakened two days later he found that he had been promoted to the position of general superintendent of the road.

In 1870 Mr. Hughitt left the service of the Illinois Central to become general manager of the St. Paul road, and a year later George M. Pullman induced him to become the manager of the Pullman company. Mr. Hughitt in 1872 accepted the position of general superintendent of the Northwestern railroad, after which his rise to the presidency was rapid and was marked by the constantly increasing importance of the system in the western railroad world.

One of the most remarkable things about the chairman of the Northwestern's board is the fact that at the age of seventy-three he is able to do and does a more strenuous day's work than most railway presidents who are 15 years younger. The fact that he came from sturdy stock, there being five living generations in the Hughitt family, with the fact also that he took the most perfect care of himself, accounts for his remarkable activity.

FRENCH REPUBLIC'S MASTER

The great railroad strike in France brought more than ever to the notice of the world a remarkable man. On the reassembling of the chamber of deputies Premier Briand created something of a sensation by declaring that he had proof, through confessions of the leaders of the recent railroad strike, that there was a deliberate plot to ruin France by violence, anarchy and civil war.

Briand, now prime minister and master of the French republic, was nobody ten years ago. At thirty-five he was an outsider, and, worse, seemingly a failure even as a lawyer. Suddenly he willed, and all came easy to him. Easy is the word that seems to characterize him now and then.

Born in St. Nazarine, he conquered a degree of law. Would he have been content to plead party wall cases, marry an $8,000 dot, play the violin, sing admirably, beat them all at billiards and talk politics? He was not of the ruling set of St. Nazaire. Possibly resentful, possible great-hearted, he certainly felt for the workingmen, who at once understood him and swore by him.

Buying a second-hand press in Paris, he took it from the freight office alone with a horse and wagon, and with one boy put it together, set the type and launched the Democracy of the West. Briand excited great animosity of the ruling classes, and so, for one reason or another, he got himself disbarred as a lawyer.

He quit St. Nazaire, his career apparently broken at the start, and began to write. Paris socialists were edified by the young stranger's grasp of their subjects. His articles in the Lanterne became at once noted for their clearness and boldness. They expressed the discontented workingman to himself—as if it were the workingman who wrote them.

He walked into the sovereign office of French deputy, first in 1902, again in 1906, and now, as simply, he has walked into the cabinet—and put himself at its head. No one realizes how he does it. All happens tranquilly, without fireworks. He steps through cruel difficulties without effort.

MISTRESS OF BIG MANSION

After nine years the most costly house in America has been finally completed, and presiding over it will be a petite young lady who has won her way to this queenly position through a courtship which once threatened to upset a section of Washington politics. The house is that of Senator W. A. Clark of Montana and New York, and is situated at the corner of Fifth avenue and Seventy-seventh street, Manhattan.

The house, when viewed from the exterior, appears rather heavy and massive for the space occupied, but, once within, one appreciates the real harmony of it all. Each of the nine stories is massed with every conceivable adjunct of comfort and luxury; from top to bottom is a store of storied wealth and mechanical device unsurpassed in the modern construction of house building. The bare structure alone cost $5,000,000.

And the copper king has reared this palace for one who not so many years ago was the daughter of a poor physician in Montana. At that time her name was Anna La Chappelle, and her father, dying penniless, commended her to the care of Senator Clark, urging his interest in her musical talent.

The senator sent his ward to the Boston Conservatory of music, where her progress was so marked as to cause him to send her to Paris, to perfect her studies. It was during this period, says Human Life, that the senator began to realize that his affection for his ward was of more than the fatherly order. While society was busy linking his name with that of nearly every eligible young lady, he became assured his ward's feelings were the same as his own, and asked her to become his wife.

RESEMBLES "FIGHTING BOB"

John C. Hartigan, Brigadier-General of the Nebraska National Guard, frequently designated as the prototype of "Fighting Bob" Evans, is a conspicuous figure, particularly in the West at the present time. Forty years of age, a native of Missouri, he is described as a natural born fighter who never knows when he is beaten. From boyhood Hartigan was always "licking" somebody. After his school days were over he licked his opponents in two races for the mayoralty at Fairbury. In 1897 he went to the Philippines as a private soldier and came home a captain. He did some gallant work in active service, and on his return was successively promoted to his present position of honor and usefulness.

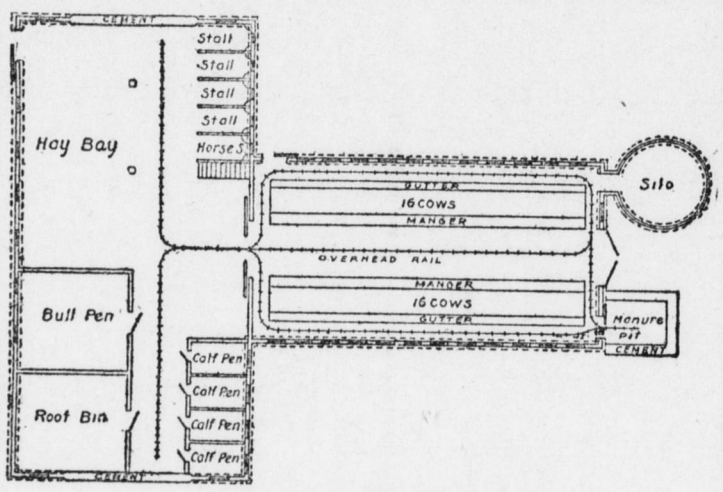
Hartigan is known as a knight of the mailed fist, and he is one-in-ten shot as a favorite son of Nebraska. The force and efficiency of his military career have been fully demonstrated to his admiring fellow citizens, and it has come about that Hartigan has overbalanced the popularity of that other illustrious Nebraskan, William Jennings Bryan. Westerners admire pluck, and it is said that Hartigan has lots of it.

IMPROVED BARN COMBINES UTILITY AND CLEANLINESS

How an Ordinary, Old-Fashioned Structure May be Easily and Cheaply Changed Into Up-to-Date Sanitary Building.

All realize that a barn to be ideal must combine both utility and cleanliness. The sanitary condition cannot be obtained to perfection in basement barns, and so, recognizing this fact I have drawn plans to show how an ordinary, old-fashioned basement barn can be easily and cheaply changed into an up-to-date barn; one which we will be proud to ask our neighbors to inspect and one in which we can produce milk that will sell for a premium, writes W. A. Cooke in New England Homestead.

The barn as it stands today is a common, rectangular, farm barn with a basement for manure and hogs; with a driveway to the floor above on which we find the cows, horses and sheep. Above are the lofts with loose board floors through which the chaff and dust are constantly sifting to contaminate both milk and cows, for we know that dust is an ideal place for the growth of all bacteria, especially tuberculosis. Let us add an ell to this barn for the cattle with no storage room above. This ell should be on the same level as the basement floor of the barn, the basement having been cleaned out and a cement floor put in. The cement floor should be continuous throughout the barn, having it level and without obstructions to hinder in the sweeping.



Ground Floor Plan of Improved Barn.

Sliding doors divide the main barn from the ell. The cows stand facing a ten-foot feed alley with a low two-foot manger, in front of them, and a one and one-half foot gutter having a six-inch drop behind them; four and one-half feet are allowed for the length of the platform. Between the gutter and the wall is a three and one-half foot space which gives ample room for cleaning. The walls are plentifully supplied with large windows so the barn may have quantities of sunlight. The manure pit is at the south end of the barn, just to the west of the large doors at the east side of the driveway and connected with the barn by a door and a short alley in a stave silo, with an inside diameter of 16 feet, and a height of 25 feet, giving a capacity of 90 tons which is sufficient to give us succulent food for 200 days. An overhead track connects all parts of the barn so that either the feed or manure car can easily do the work.

In the main barn we find five horse stalls, four calf pens, a bull pen and a large storage bin for roots. We also find a hay-bay connecting with the upper floor so that all hay for stock is easily pushed or unloaded into it. The overhead track comes through the doors from the ell so that feed can be easily loaded onto the car. The grain which is on the second floor may be loaded by means of a shoot. The horse stalls are supplied with iron hayracks and grain boxes which connect with the second floor from which the feeding is done.

On the second floor of the main barn is a driveway from end to end with hay-bays on either side. The grain room is also located on this floor so the grain may be hauled up, mixed in the room, from whence it is shoved into the feed car. Between the grain room and the east wall is an open space in which are the openings for the horse mangers. Inclined driveways at both ends enter the barn through doors 14 feet wide and 16 feet high. Above the doors are scaffolds so that all space may be utilized. The hay is unloaded by means of a horsefork running on a track to all parts of the lifts. The roof at present is a square roof, but were I to rebuild I should certainly put on a French roof as the storage capacity is greatly increased at but a slight advance in cost.

Paint will be considered a very necessary adjunct to this barn, so that it may harmonize well with the rest of the farm. Besides the beauty part the barn will last a great deal longer. The approximate cost would be $2,800; this means buying all the material and labor at present prices. The two floor plans are given herewith.

FARMERS NAME THEIR PLACES

Gives Sort of Dignity and Air of Permanence to Farms and Is Always of Great Convenience.

(By C. S. MILLER.)

I am glad to see so many farmers naming their places. A name over the main gateway or on the gatepost gives a sort of dignity and air of permanency to the farm. A farm name is always a great convenience to travelers because few of our country roads are named and a farm cannot easily be located except by name.

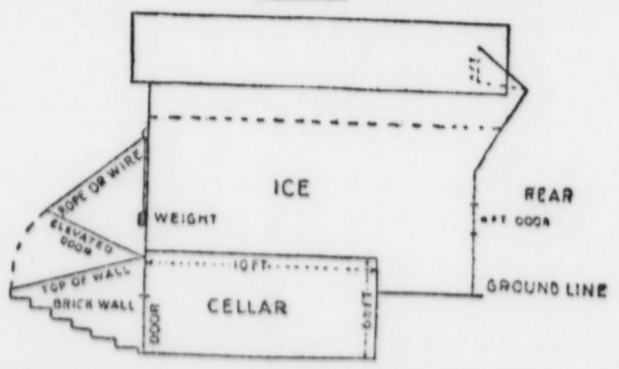
I know some farmers say it is a silly and sentimental practise but I do not agree with them. I do not think much of a man who is not proud enough of his home to give it a distinctive name.

In the south nearly every plantation is named and these names carry with them something of the true spirit of the love of rural life. If we give our farms a name we will think more of them and our children will always associate with the name some of the pleasantest memories of their lives.

Clean Milk.

Wetting the hands and teats in milking doesn't make clean milk.

COMBINED CELLAR AND ICEHOUSE



A combination of a cellar with an icehouse may be desirable under certain conditions where the cellar is to be used for cold storage. The plan shown in the illustration is for a building 14 feet by 16 feet and 10 feet high with a 10-inch wall filled with sawdust. When packing the ice, place it within 4 inches of the lining of the inner wall and fill the open spaces with sawdust. No part of the icehouse is underground. The cellar is beneath the icehouse and the entrance to it is on the outside. The cellar is 6 feet by 10 feet and 6½ feet high inside measurement, though of course it can be made larger. The top of cellar is in the form of a half circle or arch, the middle of which extends 2 feet up into the icehouse. The walls are of birch, plastered over with cement. Side walls are 8 inches thick and those of the arch 4 inches plastered outside and inside with cement. When building the arch wooden support should be used which is made of six-inch fencing supported by a 2 inch by 4 inch on each end. Two of these supports are required, placed about 2 feet from each end of the cellar and they are covered with six-inch fencing laid lengthwise of the cellar. All these wooden structures are removed after the brick arch is made. A drain tile extends around the outside of the cellar. The outside cellar door is raised and lowered by a weight and pulley.

DR. S. D. BLAND

Of Brewton, Ga., writes:

"I had been a sufferer for a number of years with Lumbago and Rheumatism in my arms and legs, and tried all the remedies that I could gather from medical works, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief obtained from "5-DROPS." I shall prescribe it in my practice for rheumatism and kindred diseases."

FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS," and test it yourself.

How's Business?

THIS ad. is directed at the man who has all the business in his line in this community.

¶ Mr. Merchant—You say you've got it all. You're selling them all they'll buy, anyhow. But at the same time you would like more business.

¶ Make this community buy more.

¶ Advertise strongly, consistently, judiciously.

¶ Suppose you can buy a lot of washtubs cheap; advertise a big washtub sale in this paper. Put in an inviting picture of a washtub where people can see it the minute they look at your ad. Talk strong on washtubs. And you'll find every woman in this vicinity who has been getting along with a rickety washtub for years and years will buy a new one from you.

¶ That's creative business power.

"The Bowery Detective."

Will be seen in this city one night, on Tuesday, Nov. 29, at the Emporium Opera House and it is always a pleasure to announce the coming of an attraction of merit. And it may not be amiss to say that the story present is not of the usual Detective novel style, but is full of heart interests, unfurling a very pretty love story, while rich with wholesome comedy running through the play, by three of the characters which keep their audience in the best of humor throughout the action of the play.

The plot of the play is hinged on the wily and unscrupulous bank President in his efforts to ruin the life of an honest and worthy bank cashier by placing trumped up charges of embezzlement against this cashier, who is forced to flee the country, and through the efforts of a well-known government sleuth known as "The Bowery Detective," the dastardly plot is unravelled and the crime fastened on the right ones.

The management has taken great pains in casting the play to give the same a strong interpretation, each one portraying their character for their individual worth, which makes it an excellent production, capably acted.

Seats are now on sale at the usual place and no advance in the regular prices will be made.

Democrats Who Will Run Things.

Presuming that in the Democratic Congress the chairmanships of committees will be awarded by the Speaker, who is expected to be Champ Clark, of Missouri, in the usual way—that of seniority in party service—it is easy to name those who will run the affairs of Congress, says Philadelphia Inquirer.

The great Committee on Ways and Means, now headed by Payne of New York, will pass into the hands of Underwood, of Alabama. In case Clark should not be given the Speakership, he would take over the Ways and Means Committee, since he is the ranking Democratic member of that committee now. Either the gentleman from Florida or the gentleman from Missouri would command the forces engaged in revising the tariff law. Clark is a disciple of Bryan. Mr. Underwood believes in "a tariff for revenue only. That is a pleasant outlook for wage earners dependent upon a protective tariff for steady employment, isn't it?

Next in importance comes the Committee on Appropriations, which will pass out of hands of Tawney, of Minn. Fitzgerald, of New York, is entitled to the chairmanship, but there is no love lost between Fitzgerald and Clark, for the New Yorker bolted the leadership of the Missouran in the contest over the House rules and dealt with the Cannon following, therefore the appointment of Burleson, of Texas, as chairman of this committee may be looked for.

Arsene P. Pujo, a Democrat of Louisiana, is the logical successor of Mr. Vreeland, of New York, as head of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

As chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs we shall have Flood of Virginia, in place of Foster, of Vermont.

Questions concerning immigration and immigration laws will be turned over to Burnett, of Alabama, as chairman of the Immigration Committee, instead of to Howell, of New Jersey.

Old soldiers and those interested in the pension laws will have to look to Richardson, of Alabama, and not to Loudenslager, of New Jersey.

Mr. Mann, of Illinois, has been handling matters relating to interstate and foreign commerce. Adamson, of Georgia, is the ranking Democrat on the committee.

The Committee on the Judiciary will be given to Clayton, of Alabama, and Parker, of New Jersey, will be retired.

There will be little chance for the building up of the American Merchant Marine under the Democratic House. Greene, of Massachusetts, present chairman of the Commitee on Merchant Marine, retires for Clark, of Florida. The Democratic policy will be free ships, if it carries out any policy whatever.

What will be the ideas of the Democratic House concerning the development of rivers and harbors can only be conjectured. There is a special committee on the improvements of the Mississippi, the Chairmanship of which will go to an Arkansas Democrat It is presumed that the Mississippi will be well cared for, but what of the interests of the Delaware? The Delaware and harbor and river developments generally are under the control of the important Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and the chairmanship will pass from Alexander, of New York, to Sparkman, of Florida.

The navy will be at the mercy of a Tennessee Democrat, Mr. Padgett; Postoffice affairs, of Moon, of Tennessee; public lands, of Robinson, of Arkansas. while the Agricultural Committee will go to John Lamb, of Virginia.

Such is the havoc that Republicans have wrought, for only by Republican votes have the Democratic victories been made possible. All of the committees which have to do with the great interests of the United States—rivers and harbors, banking and currency, appropriations, naval affairs, foreign affairs, postoffices, the consideration of the tariff and of the supply bills, immigration, public lands—all of these pass out of the lands of eastern and western chairman, and the South comes into full control.

There will be time for cool second thought before the Presiddntial election of 1912.

Heed The Warning.

Many Emporiam People have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brick-dust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequently rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only; they cure sick kidneys, and rid the blood of uric poison. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy. Emporium people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. E. L. Rendt, Fifth Street, Emporium, Pa., says: "For years kidney trouble kept me in misery. My back ached constantly and I could not rest well on account of the acute pains across my loins. My kidneys caused me much annoyance and I felt miserable in every way. Reading about Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a box from Taggart's Drug Store and commenced their use. Prompt relief was received and I now have no cause for complaint. I have often recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. The servants desert. Gertrude and Halsey arrive with Jack Bailey. The house was awakened by a revolver shot and Arnold Armstrong was found shot to death in the hall. Miss Innes found Halsey's revolver on the lawn. He and Jack Bailey had disappeared. Gertrude revealed that she was engaged to Jack Bailey, with whom she talked in the billiard room shortly before the murder. Detective Jamieson accused Miss Innes of holding back evidence. He imprisoned an intruder in an empty room. The prisoner escaped. Gertrude was suspected because of an injured foot. Halsey reappears and says he and Bailey were called away by a telegram. Cashier Bailey of Paul Armstrong's bank, defunct, was arrested for embezzlement. Paul Armstrong's death was announced. Halsey's fiancee, Louise Armstrong, told Halsey that while she still loved him, she was to marry another. It developed that Dr. Walker was the man. Louise was found at the bottom of the circular staircase. Recovering consciousness, she said something had brushed by her on the stairway and she fainted. Bailey is suspected of Armstrong's murder. After "seeing a ghost," Thomas, the lodgekeeper, was found dead with a slip in his pocket bearing the name of "Lucien Wallace." Dr. Walker asked Miss Innes to vacate in favor of Mrs. Armstrong. She refused. A note from Bailey to Gertrude arranging a meeting at night was found. A ladder out of place deepens the mystery. The stables were burned. During the excitement a man stole into the house. A search failed to reveal him. Miss Innes shot an intruder. A man limping was seen on the road. Halsey mysteriously disappeared, Louise scenting danger before his absense was noted.

"Miss Armstrong Is Very Ill and Unable to See Any One."

"He's as dear to me as he is to you," she said sadly. "I tried to warn him."

"Nonsense!" I said as briskly as I could. "We are making a lot of trouble out of something perhaps very small. Halsey was probably late—he is always late. Any moment we may hear the car coming up the road."

But it did not come. After a half-hour of suspense, Louise went out quietly, and did not come back. I hardly knew she was gone until I heard the station hack moving off. At 11 o'clock the telephone rang. It was Mr. Jamieson.

"I have found the Dragon Fly, Miss Innes," he said. "It has collided with a freight car on the siding above the station. No, Mr. Innes was not there, but we shall probably find him. Send Warner for the car."

But they did not find him. At four o'clock the next morning we were still waiting for news, while Alex watched the house and Sam the grounds. At daylight I dropped into exhausted sleep. Halsey had not come back, and there was no word from the detective.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Halsey's Disappearance.

Mr. Jamieson came back about eight o'clock the next morning; he was covered with mud, and his hat was gone. Altogether we were a sad-looking trio that gathered around a breakfast that no one could eat. Over a cup of black coffee the detective told us what he had learned of Halsey's movements the night before. Up to a certain point the car had made it easy enough to follow him. And I gathered that Mr. Burns, the other detective, had followed a similar car for miles at dawn, only to find it was a touring car on an endurance run.

"He left here about ten minutes after eight," Mr. Jamieson said. "He went alone; at 8:20 he stopped at Dr. Walker's. I went to the doctor's about midnight, but he had been called out on a case, and had not come back at four o'clock. From the doctor's it seems Mr. Innes walked across the lawn to the cottage Mrs. Armstrong and her daughter have taken. Mrs. Armstrong had retired, and he said perhaps a dozen words to Miss Louise. She will not say what they were, but the girl evidently suspects what has occurred. That is, she suspects foul play, but she doesn't know of what nature. Then, apparently, he started directly for the station. Along somewhere in the dark stretch between Carol street and the depot he evidently swerved suddenly—perhaps some one in the road—and went full into the side of a freight. We found it there last night."

"He might have been thrown under the train by the force of the shock," I said tremulously.

Gertrude shuddered.

"We examined every inch of track. There was—no sign."

"But surely—he can't be—gone!" I cried. "Aren't there traces in the mud—anything?"

"There is no mud—only dust. There has been no rain. And the footpath there is of cinders. Miss Innes, I am inclined to think that he has met with bad treatment, in the light of what has gone before. I do not think he has been murdered." I shrank from the word. "Burns is back in the country on a clew we got from the night clerk at the drug store. There will be two more men here by noon, and the city office is on the lookout."

"The creek?" Gertrude asked.

"The creek is shallow now. If it were swollen with rain it would be different. There is hardly any water in it. Now, Miss Innes," he said, turning to me, "I must ask you some questions. Had Mr. Halsey any possible reason for going away like this, without warning?"

"None whatever."

"He went away once before," he persisted. "And you were as sure then."

"He did not leave the Dragon Fly jammed into the side of a freight car before."

"No, but he left it for repairs in a blacksmith shop, a long distance from here. Do you know if he had any enemies? Any one who might wish him out of the way?"

"Not that I know of, unless—no, I cannot think of any."

"Was he in the habit of carrying money?"

"He never carried it far. No, he never had more than enough for current expenses."

Mr. Jamieson got up then and began to pace the room. It was an unwonted concession to the occasion.

"Then I think we get at it by elimination. The chances are against flight. If he was hurt, we find no trace of him. It looks almost like an abduction. This young Dr. Walker—have you any idea why Mr. Innes should have gone there last night?"

"I cannot understand it," Gertrude said thoughtfully. "I don't think he knew Dr. Walker at all, and—their relations could hardly have been cordial, under the circumstances."

Jamieson pricked up his ears, and little by little he drew from us the unfortunate story of Halsey's love affair, and the fact that Louise was going to marry Dr. Walker.

Mr. Jamieson listened attentively.

"There are some interesting developments here," he said thoughtfully. "The woman who claims to be the mother of Lucien Wallace has not come back. Your nephew has apparently been spirited away. There is an organized attempt being made to enter this house; in fact, it has been entered. Witness the incident with the cook yesterday. And I have a new piece of information." He looked carefully away from Gertrude. "Mr John Bailey is not at his Knickerbocker apartments, and I don't know where he is. It's a hash, that's what it is. It's a Chinese puzzle. They won't fit together, unless—unless Mr. Bailey and your nephew have again—"

And once again Gertrude surprised me. "They are not together," she said hotly. "I—know where Mr. Bailey is, and my brother is not with him."

"Miss Gertrude," he said, "if you and Miss Louise would only tell me everything you know and surmise about this business, I should be able to do a great many things. I believe I could find your brother, and I might be able to—well, to do some other things." But Gertrude's glance did not falter.

"Nothing that I know could help you to find Halsey," she said stubbornly. "I know absolutely as little of his disappearance as you do, and I can only say this: I do not trust Dr. Walker. I think he hated Halsey, and he would get rid of him if he could."

"Perhaps you are right. In fact, I had some such theory myself. But Dr. Walker went out late last night to a serious case in Summitville, and is still there. Burns traced him there. We have made guarded inquiry at the Greenwood club and through the village. There is absolutely nothing to go on but this: On the embankment above the railroad, at the point where we found the machine, is a small house. An old woman and a daughter, who is very lame, live there. They say that they distinctly heard the shock when the Dragon Fly hit the car, and they went to the bottom of their garden and looked over. The automobile was there; they could see the lights, and they thought some one had been injured. It was very dark, but they could make out two figures, standing together. The women were curious, and, leaving the fence, they went back and by a roundabout path down to the road. When they got there the car was still standing, the headlight broken and the bonnet crushed, but there was no one to be seen."

The detective went away immediately, and to Gertrude and me was left the woman's part, to watch and wait. By luncheon nothing had been found, and I was frantic. I went upstairs to Halsey's room finally, from sheer inability to sit across from Gertrude any longer and meet her terror-filled eyes.

Liddy was in my dressing room, suspiciously red-eyed and trying to put a right sleeve in a left arm-hole of a new waist for me. I was too much shaken to scold.

"What name did that woman in the kitchen give?" she demanded, viciously ripping out the offending sleeve.

"Bliss. Mattie Bliss," I replied.

"Bliss. M. B. Well, that's not what she has on her suitcase. It is marked N. F. C."

The new cook and her initials troubled me not all. I put on my bonnet and sent for what the Casanova liveryman called a "stylish turnout." Having once made up my mind to a course of action, I am not one to turn back. Warner drove me; he was plainly disgusted, and he steered the livery horse as he would the Dragon Fly, feeling uneasily with his left foot for the clutch, and working his right elbow at an imaginary horn every time a dog got in the way.

Warner had something on his mind, and after we had turned into the road he voiced it.

"Miss Innes," he said. "I overheard a part of a conversation yesterday that I didn't understand. It wasn't my business to understand it, for that matter. But I've been thinking all day that I'd better tell you. Yesterday afternoon, while you and Miss Gertrude were out driving, I had got the car in some sort of shape again after the fire, and I went to the library to call Mr. Innes to see it. I went into the living room, where Miss Liddy said he was, and half-way across the library I heard him talking to some one. He seemed to be walking up and down, and he was in a rage, I can tell you."

"What did he say?"

"The first thing I heard was—excuse me, Miss Innes, but it's what he said, 'The damned rascal,' he said, 'I'll see him in'—well, in hell was what he said, 'in hell first.' Then somebody else spoke up; it was a woman. She said: 'I warned them, but they thought I would be afraid.'"

"A woman! Did you wait to see who it was?"

"I wasn't spying, Miss Innes," Warner said with dignity. "But the next thing caught my attention. She said: 'I knew there was something wrong from the start. A man isn't well one day, and dead the next, without some reason.' I thought she was speaking of Thomas."

"And you don't know who it was!" I exclaimed. "Warner, you had the key to this whole occurrence in your hands and did not see it!"

However, there was nothing to be done. I resolved to make inquiry when I got home, and in the meantime, my present errand absorbed me. This was nothing less than to see Louise Armstrong, and to attempt to drag from her what she knew, or suspected of Halsey's disappearance. But here, as in every direction I turned, I was baffled.

A neat maid answered the bell, but she stood squarely in the doorway, and it was impossible to preserve one's dignity and pass her.

"Miss Armstrong is very ill and unable to see any one," she said. I did not believe her.

"And Mrs. Armstrong—is she also ill?"

"She is with Miss Louise and cannot be disturbed."

"Tell her it is Miss Innes, and that it is a matter of the greatest importance."

"It would be of no use, Miss Innes, my orders are positive."

At that moment a heavy step sounded on the stairs. Past the maid's white-strapped shoulder I could see a familiar thatch of gray hair, and in a moment I was face to face with Dr. Stewart. He was very grave, and his customary geniality was tinged with restraint.

"You are the very woman I want to see," he said promptly. "Send away your trap, and let me drive you home. What is this about your nephew?"

"He has disappeared, doctor. Not only that, but there is every evidence that he has been either abducted or —" I could not finish. The doctor helped me into his capacious buggy in silence. Until we had got a little distance he did not speak; then he turned and looked at me.

"Now tell me all about it," he said. He heard me through without speaking.

"And you think Louise knows something?" he said when I had finished. "I don't—in fact, I am sure of it. The best evidence of it is this: She asked me if he had been heard from, or if anything had been learned. She won't allow Walker in the room, and she made me promise to see you and tell you this: don't give up the search for him. Find him, and find him soon. He is living."

"Well," I said, "if she knows that, she knows more. She is a very cruel and ungrateful girl."

"She is a very sick girl," he said gravely. "Neither you nor I can judge her until we know everything. Both she and her mother are ghosts of their former selves. Under all this, these two sudden deaths, this bank robbery, the invasions at Sunnyside and Halsey's disappearance, there is some mystery that, mark my words, will come out some day. And when it does, we shall find Louise Armstrong a victim."

Then we drove slowly home. I had the doctor put me down at the gate, and I walked to the house—past the lodge where we had found Louise, and, later, poor Thomas; on the drive where I had seen a man watching the lodge and where, later, Rosie had been frightened; past the east entrance, where so short a time before the most obstinate effort had been made to enter the house, and where, that night two weeks ago, Liddy and I had seen the strange woman. Not far from the west wing lay the blackened ruins of the stables. I felt like a ruin myself as I paused on the broad veranda before I entered the house.

Two private detectives had arrived in my absence, and it was a relief to turn over to them the responsibility of the house and grounds. Mr. Jamieson, they said, had arranged for more to assist in the search for the missing man, and at that time the country was being scoured in all directions.

The household staff was again depleted that afternoon. Liddy was waiting to tell me that the new cook had gone, bag and baggage, without waiting to be paid. No one had admitted the visitor whom Warner had heard in the library, unless, possibly, the missing cook. Again I was working in a circle.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

His Little Joke.

"I'm sorry, old man," said the doctor when his patient came out of the chloroform, "but we had to remove your leg to save your life."

"Will I get better?" asked the man feebly.

"Yes, you're all right now. You ought to live 20 years more."

"Ah," sighed the victim, "that's a long while to live with one foot in the grave."

KING OF THE COCOS

Bachelor of 30 Inherits Throne and Vast Estate.

Is Absolute Monarch Over Malays Inhabiting the Cocos Keeling Group of Islands—Capital Has Population of 700.

London.—His Majesty, Sidney I, the new King of the Cocos Keeling islands, is in London engaged over the administration of the affairs of the late king, his father, whose estate has just been proved at the value of over $1,000,000, exclusive of his properties in the islands.

The new king received a representative of the London Leader in the anteroom of a city office in Whittington avenue, and consented to be interviewed with a readiness that is remarkable, to say the least of it, on the part of a reigning monarch.

King Sidney is a tall, spare young man of about 30, as brown as a beechnut, with high cheek bones, close-cropped black hair, a carefully trained mustache, and a soft, caressing voice. He was completely disguised in well-fitting clothes of gray and patent leather boots. An enormous emerald glowed upon the little finger of his left hand—a jewel such as none but a king dare wear, and from his watch chain dangled a medal of gold, struck in commemoration of the discovery of the Cocos Keeling islands in the early days of the seventeenth century.

"Pray be seated," said his Majesty, producing an aromatic cigarette. "The court I receive here is quite unofficial, I assure you. At the royal palace of New Selma it might be different——" He waved his hand airily. "I am plain Mr. Sidney Clunies Ross here; and when I get to Cocos I shall have quite enough of kingship to last me a lifetime. It's true that when I am at home I shall be a king with more power than most monarchs, with a royal palace that cost a fortune to build, with my own laws to administer in my own way, and no ministry to worry me.

"In my kingdom," continued his Majesty, "there are neither police nor soldiery. I am chief magistrate and commander-in-chief as well as king, just as my father was before me. I settle all disputes, civil, ecclesiastical and moral! I may tell you that as 'heir apparent' I ran the regency in my late father's absence, and so served a useful apprenticeship to the business I am now succeeding to. I think I've got the hang of the islands, so to speak, and I don't anticipate any trouble when I come into my kingdom. The principles of government have been simplified since my great-grandfather reigned as first king of the Cocos Keeling group.

"We are strictly a moral community. No drunkenness is allowed, and beyond the little whisky that is doled out from the palace, no intoxicating liquors are obtainable on the islands. There was a time, not so long ago, when the natives manufactured their own fire water. They brewed a concoction from cocoanuts, which they called 'palm toddy.' They got drunk on it—nastily drunk—and the result was a law prohibiting every possible variety of palm toddy. Today, so far as I know, there isn't a drop of that toddy obtainable on the islands."

His Majesty went on to describe the principal city of the island group and its domestic life. New Selma is its name, and its population is barely 700—all, with two or three exceptions, Malays, of whom Inin, the Queen Mother, is one. New Selma boasts a modern school in which Arabic and a little English are taught, and the young idea is trained in the tenets of Mohametanism, which is the religion of all proper Malayans. All marrying and giving in marriage has to be done through the New Selma registry office—after his Majesty has approved of the union. To understand the divorce laws of the kingdom it is perhaps necessary to be a New Selman; they are a little complicated. Like his father before him, the new king was sent to Scotland (the home of his ancestors) to be educated.

It will be only in accordance with the fitness of things if King Sidney marries in the islands, as his forbears did. His grandfather married the beautiful Sinia Dupong, a Malay of royal Solon blood, whilst the late king espoused Inin, "the dusky queen."

Early Roller Rink.

London.—This city seems to have possessed a roller skating rink over three-quarters of a century ago, for in 1823 mention can be found of the invention of a skate "for rendering the amusement independent of frost," which was being "practically exhibited at the old tennis court in Windmill street."

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."—Mrs. AUGUSTE VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wisconsin.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

He Was a Boston Boy.

"Your little boy must be very intelligent," said a visitor to a Boston school teacher whose five-year-old son was forming Greek words with building blocks.

"Intelligent!" exclaimed the proud parent. "He is phenomenally gifted. As an example of his early erudition, what do you suppose were the first words he ever spoke?"

"'Papa' and 'mamma?'"

"Stuff and nonsense!" ejaculated the father, in a tone of disgust. "Why, the day he was 12 months old he suddenly laid down his algebra and said to me: 'Father, the longer I live the more indubitable proofs I perceive that there is in Boston as much culture to the square inch as there ever was in the ambient area of ancient Athens!'"

An Awful Moment.

The company always included many delightful women, and I remember the consternation caused among them one day by Burnham, the scout. He explained that he attributed his success as a scout to the acuteness of his sense of smell; it was like a bloodhound's.

"There's no one here today," he affirmed, "who at any time anywhere in the future I could not recognize in the dark. Yes, I could tell you, and you, and you," nodding at an alluring group in modish apparel, "by the way you smell."

For an awful moment the conversation flagged.—McClure's.

STOPPED SHORT

Taking Tonics, and Built Up on Right Food.

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics—drugs.

New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells is what should be supplied, and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and study, and to illness in the family," writes a Wisconsin young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me and I gained no flesh nor blood.

"Reading of Grape-Nuts, I determined to stop the tonics and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape-Nuts four times a day, with cream and drank milk also, went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape-Nuts.

"In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time gained 20 pounds in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter whom I was obliged to keep out of school last spring on account of chronic catarrh has changed from a thin, pale, nervous child to a rosy, healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

"Grape-Nuts and fresh air were the only agents used to accomplish the happy results."

For Business Girl

TIME was when the business woman took no thought as to wherewith-all she should be clothed—attractively. The tailored shirt waist, the stiff linen collar and the well fitting tailored skirt for the office, with a jacket or coat, and the plainest of hats for the street, made the limits of her choice very circumscribed. Such an outfit, of good material, good tailoring and immaculate as to condition, is hard to improve upon. But a too steady diet of the best of things gets tiresome, especially to women, and along came the business girl, in whom the eternal feminine longing for pretty clothes was not to be repressed.

The business girl, tastefully dressed, is still tailor-made, but with variations. Among her first discoveries was that of the extravagance of the immaculate shirt waist. It had to be fresh as a rose, or its charm was gone. This meant a change every other day, with a longing for a daily clean waist which went intensified in the majority of cases. For laundry bills have to be reckoned with. The business girl took up the dainy lingerie waist, with a little embroidery and a little fine lace for decoration. With three-quarter length sleeves and removable collars, she achieved economy in the matter of laundry bills and prettier dressing at the same time. The daily fresh collar is a joy and an inspiration.

The black silk waists of messaline or other soft satin-finished silks, is a boon to the business girl. They are prettiest made with yoke and collar of white net, lace or batiste. These yokes are easily washed and dried over night, or a set of three will provide for the week. Many of the waists have high collars, with which turnovers are worn. They are not quite as pretty as those with yokes. Black skirts well fitted and tailored, are worn with these waists. The effect is dignified and charming. Other dark colors, such as navy and dark brown, are made up in the same way, but black never grows tiresome. The large retail establishments require their salespeople to wear black, because it is the best choice in colors, but it is much improved by the touch of white near the face in yoke or collar. Yokes of black net are worn by the way of variety.

Now that the one-piece dress is so much in vogue, a black serge, if well tailored and fitted, will give the business girl greater satisfaction. After this, a dark, rich blue is the best choice. The plainest of shapely coats to match, worn with white collar and jabot at the neck, and a smart hat, make the costume all that any one could ask.

It is in the matter of hats that the business girl is most liable to fail in her attempts to get both practical and pretty things. This is probably because she is laboring under some delusions as to what is practical, that is what is durable and becoming.

Very large hats lose their shape with much wear, are difficult to manage on windy days, get in the way in elevators and cars and become much battered and dilapidated before their days are all numbered. Therefore, I beseech you little business girl, buy a small, smart hat, made of good material and in a simple design. Beavers and beaver cloth, felts (in good quality) velvet and (spite of its fragile appearance) good chiffon will stand constant wear. Don't consider ostrich feathers or flowers, but pin your faith to wings, quills or fancy feathers, bows and rosettes of ribbon or silk, waterproof malines or chiffon, in selecting trimmings. Shapes are good this fall. In fact, millinery is the best we have had for many a year.

I advocate the things that make for a dainty, neat, well-set-up appearance, in business or anywhere else. The clean yoke and collar, the well fitting and well fastened dress, the carefully arranged hair, smooth and shining in puff or curl, and the smart and trig street hat make up an ensemble that have frills and furbelows badly beaten, when it comes to real permanent charm. If she only knew it, the clothes appropriately for the business girl are "the best ever."

REALLY SMART LITTLE DRESS

Blue Shantung Probably Is Best Material for the Design Given Here.

Nattier blue Shantung is used for this smart little dress; it has a loose and rather long-waisted bodice fastening at the side, both skirt and bodice being attached to the same waistband.

The square cut neck, the edge of right side, and sleeves are finished with a band of tan-colored foulard spotted with dark blue; the band on bodice is continued to edge of skirt; buttons and cord loops form a further trimming. The tucked yoke and under-sleeves of silk muslin.

Materials required: 5 yards Shantung 34 inches wide, ½ yard silk muslin 44 inches wide, ½ yard foulard 24 inches wide, 18 buttons.

DAINTINESS IN SERVING TEA

Small Things That Count For Much in This Most Pleasant Afternoon Function.

As young women are so often asked to pour tea for their friends who are entertaining, they should realize what a difference it makes how the tea is served. If this is done in a careless manner the guests have always the feeling that something may at any moment be upset, and the quiet and repose, which is an essential element in that most peaceful function, is lost.

It is well for the person who pours the tea to rearrange the tray before the arrival of the guests, so that each piece is just where she is accustomed to have it, otherwise she is apt to fumble and move the things about. As far as possible reaching over the table should be avoided and in moving the china care should be taken never to touch the rims of the cups.

Observing these little points makes the difference between an impression of daintiness and the reverse, for which some guests would care more than for the flavor of the tea.

The gown in one piece which fastens up front or back is in excellent style.

Cake Making.

A fine cake is the flower of cookery. It requires more care and judgment than many other branches of cookery.

A really good cake is not a common sight, for we need to raise our standards as to perfection along many lines of cookery.

A cake to be in the blue ribbon class should be fine grained, light and feathery white and good flavored. This is speaking for the regular butter cakes which are most common as loaf and layer. Sponge and angel cakes should be fine of texture and tender. A fruit cake, rich without being soggy.

In filling a cake pan it is well to remember that the center of the cake is the part which will usually be the highest, so spread the batter as much to the sides as possible, leaving a depression in the center, then the cake, when baked, will be level.

The making of cake requires skill and care, with practise. Careful measuring is no small part of successful cake making.

The mixing and baking are equally important. Many a well made cake has been spoiled in the baking.

German cooks excel in the making of tortes, the cake par excellence. They are rich in eggs and nuts and crumbs of cake or bread take the place of flour. The following is a delicious one that may be made if the directions are carefully followed:

Walnut Torte.

Beat the whites of six eggs with one cupful of sugar and a fourth of a pound of walnuts, grated, and six grated lady fingers, two tablespoonfuls of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Add the juice and rind of half a lemon, cut and fold in the whites of the eggs and bake in layers in a moderate oven.

Filling.

Beat one egg yolk, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cup of milk. Cook until the mixture coats the spoon then add three-fourths of a pound of walnuts grated and a little vanilla. Put between the layers and on top, or the top may be iced.

Keep a pile of pumice stone to remove stains from the hands.

PEOPLE who take pains never to do more than they get paid for never get paid for any more than they do."

A Dozen Divine Points.

Can'st tell how an oyster makes his shell? No! Nor I, neither. We have been taught that the oyster is poisonous during the summer months. The old adage, "Eat no oysters in months which have no R," is common to us all. May is the month in which the spawning season opens, and although they are never unwholesome, June, July and August they are poorer in quality and lack flavor—nature's way of protecting her own.

A large proportion of the oysters consumed are eaten raw, so that it is very necessary that they should be perfectly wholesome.

If not absolutely sure of the freshness of the oysters, the liquor should be thrown away and the oysters washed.

Old-Fashioned Stew.

Put the oysters over the heat with their own liquor or an equal amount or water, cook until the edges curl; add seasonings of salt, butter and pepper and turn into the tureen. Scald a quart of milk for a pint of oysters, and pour over the oysters.

Oysters a la Creole.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add a slice of onion and cook until pale brown. Add one teaspoonful of flour. When brown add a cupful of tomatoes. Cook until smooth, then add a pint of oysters; when the edges curl add a drop of tabasco, salt and parsley to taste. Serve on toast.

Egg Plant With Mushroom Stuffing.

Cut the egg plant in halves lengthwise, and parboil in salted water until the pulp is tender. Scoop the pulp to within half an inch of the skin. Chop the pulp fine, add half its bulk of chopped mushrooms, the same quantity of bread crumbs soaked in stock or moistened with water, half a teaspoonful of minced onion, a tablespoonful of butter and pepper and salt to taste. Fill the shells with the mixture, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake three-quarters of an hour. Minced ham may be used instead of mushrooms and the onion omitted. This dish is a delicious as an accompaniment to steak or game.

The Old-Fashioned Indian Pudding.

Scald one cupful of cornmeal in a quart of boiling milk, add a cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cup of suet and the same of raisins, a half cup of flour, cinnamon or nutmeg to taste and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Add another quart of milk and bake slowly three hours.

THOUGHT SHE HAD PRACTICED

Frenchman's Suspicions Really Something of a Compliment to the Men of America.

Claude Grahame White, the English aviator, praised, at a dinner in New York, the good fellowship of Americans.

"The American woman is regarded abroad as an angel," he said. "The man is admittedly a good fellow, but an angel he is far from being.

"You've heard of the Frenchman perhaps, whose sweetheart spent the summer in America? After her return the poor Frenchman seemed quite blue.

"'What's the matter with you?' a friend asked.

"'I am worried,' the other muttered, 'about my fiancee. You see, since her return from America she kisses so much better than she used to.'"

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain—would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

SICK, SOUR, UPSET STOMACH

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Relieved Five Minutes After Taking a Little Diapepsin.

Here is a harmless preparation which surely will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of Indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store here in town.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Gastritis or any other stomach disorder.

For almost everybody, the course of life is fixed by inexorable necessities. Not one in a thousand is free to choose the life he would care for.—Dickinson.

But is doesn't take long to tame a social lion.

When You Feel Played Out

There comes a time when your grip on things weakens. Your nerves are unstrung, the vital forces low, the stomach is weak and the blood impoverished. You feel old age creeping over you. Be careful of yourself. Take at once; there is need to renew the life forces. Weak nerves, wearied brains, sick stomach, feeble blood, torpid liver, sluggish bowels—all feel the quickening effects of Beecham's Pills. Their use makes all the difference. The tonic action of these pills upon the vital organs is immediate, thorough and lasting. They are Nature's own remedy

"Two bottles Cured My Rheumatism"

"I have been a sufferer from rheumatism for about two years, and have used many liniments and patent medicines which gave me no relief. A lady friend of mine told me she had used your Liniment and found relief at once. I got two bottles and they cured me. I think it is the best Liniment a person can have in the house. I shall always keep a bottle in my house as long as I can get it."—MRS. E. R. WALLACE, Morrisons, Va.

What of The Democracy?

According to the New York World there is now for the first time in fifty years, "a coherent Democratic Party which is sobered by victory and responsibility." We are assured that "for the first time since Andrew Jackson's administration the Democratic Party is emancipated and master of its own destinies;" that "the Democratic slate is wiped clean," and that "the party is back to its first principles again, under leadership that is fit to lead," says the Philadelphia Enquirer. The World enumerates as "the new generation of leaders": Wilson, of New Jersey; Dix, of New York; Harmon, of Ohio; Baldwin, of Conn.; Foss, of Mass.; Plaisted, of Maine, and Mayor Gaynor, of New York. It adds:

> The way to the completere habilitation of the Democratic Party is now so simple that it can be lost only by blind stupidity and folly. The trail is so plainly blazed that there can be no excuse for losing it. A Democratic Senator in Maine who represents what Plaisted represents; a Democratic Senator in New York who represents what Gaynor and Dix represents; aDemocratic Senator in New Jersey who represents what Wilson represents; a Democratic Senator in Ohio who represents what Harmon represents; Democratic leadership in Congress that is sane, progressive and cautious—and the work of making a new Democratic Party is done.

Very interesting; but what are "the first principles"? Is it the Jeffersonian doctrine to which old time Democrats are constantly appealing and concerning the meaning of which no two agree? Is "Jeffersonian simplicity" exemplified by the expenditure of $37,000 by the Democratic candidate in Massachusetts, Mr. Foss, to secure his election? And if the way to "complete rehabilitation" is dependent upon the selection to the Senate of men of the stamp of Plaisted, Gaynor, Dix, Wilson and Harmon—well, perhaps we had better wait and see what the Democratic politicians of Maine, New York, New Jersey, and Ohio, manage to do when the time comes to elect Senators.

There is a hungry lot of Democratic politicians in these States and the names "mentioned" do not as yet promise much substantial support to the "new" Democracy. And it must be remembered, too, that in the next Congress every important committee of the House will be in the hands of Southern Democrats with Champ Clark, of Missouri, presiding as speaker.

It may be that some of these newly elected Democratic Governors—who don't count at Washington—have been sobered by responsibility and hope that the sobering influence will extend to the Democratic bosses and sub-bosses and to the Southern chairmen of committees, but that is only a hope. It is very apparent that the one great issue is the tariff question. How is it to be handled?

The Republican Party is bound to accept as its policy the scheme of President Taft. which means an end to "general revisions" by committees of Congress. No more of that sort of work, but in its place the scientific investigations conducted by a tariff board or commission and the taking up by Congress of a single schedule at a time. Nor will the Republican Party depart from its policy of affording protection to manufacturers and to employes to the extent at least of the difference of cost of production in this country and abroad.

That is not the Democratic idea at all. Be as sober as they may, the Democratic proposition is a "tariff for revenue only"—a tariff, that is to say, that will look to revenue as the first object and without regard to protection. Governor-elect Wilson is a tariff "reformer," who would like to see as close an approach to free trade as is possible. Governor-elect Foss makes no secret of where he stands on the tariff. Like most other Democrats he has no use for the tariff board or commission. "The commission itself is only a subterfuge," says he, "and the people are in no mood to wait for its reports. The first thing for us to do is to kick out all the graft of the present schedules and get back to old-fashioned honesty."

So it is seen that even Mr. Foss, who is held up as a representative leader of the "coherent" and "emancipated" Democratic Party, wants, above everything else, to plunge the country immediately into another general revision—and under the auspices of a Democratic Ways and Means Committee headed by a Southern Democrat.

The country either wishes this thing done or it doesn't. It will make up its mind at the election of 1912, when a Republican or Democratic President will be elected.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in its natural and healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

With The Magazines.

DECEMBER METROPOLITAN.

In the METROPOLITAN Magazine for December, Prof. Herschel C. Parker and Belmore Browne give an interesting and straightforward account of their attempt to climb Mount McKinley last summer. While they failed to reach the summit, their narrative is a valuable contribution to the literature of discovery and a record of pluck and daring decidedly worth reading. In "Triumphs of Medicine," Arthur B. Reeve gives the first popular account of Dr. Ehrlich's remarkable discovery of the specific for blood poisoning known as "606." The article also describes the latest advances of medicine in the treatment of typhoid and cancer. What might be called the inside story of the Portuguese revolution is told by Cunliffe-Owen in "Will King Manuel Return?" in which is related England's strange part in the royal overthrow. The third instalment of "The Life Story of J. P. Morgan" by Carl Hovey, describes the first Morgan syndicate and the rescue of Vanderbilt. Gardner Teall writes on "Christmas Story in Modern Art" and Richard Wightman contributes an essay of much beauty in "Child and Woman and Child." There are a number of good stories by Justus Miles Forman, Harrison Rhodes, Neith Boyce and others, and as usual the magazine is profusely illustrated.

The Delineator For December.

The DELINEATOR for December is one of the most beautiful of the holi day magazines. The Christmas spirit is suggested in picture and story. There are illustrations in color that mark the highest artistic entertainment. The frontispiece by Sigismund de Ivanowski, and the full page, "The Night Before Christmas," by Mary Ellen Sigsbee, are remarkable examples of the best that the art of painter and printer can offer.

In "Conversazione" Erman J. Ridgway strikes the keynote of right living with a bit of philosophy suggested to an out-of-door Christmas who hears a strain of church music.

The Christmas stories are of rare quality: "What Happened in The Night," by James Hopper is a delightful fantasy,; "Christmas For One," by Parker H. Fillmore, will touch the heart, and "Madame Joy-in-Life," by Wanda Petrunkevitch will reveal a character whom everybody will welcome as a holiday guest. "The Unforseen," Mary Stewart Cutting's fascinating serial, reaches a happy ending.

Among the articles of the month is "Children's Christmas Around the World," by C. Bryson Taylor, a description of holiday celebrations in many lands. Charles Francis Read, M. D., tells how Christmas is passed in "These Terrible Asylums;" Gelett Burgess gives advice on "How to See a Play," and Mabel Potter Daggett contributes a character sketch, "A Father to Forty." The fourth of Anne Forsyth's experiences when "Seven Times a Servant" is most illuminating.

DRIFTWOOD.

Miss Laura Vrooman, of Driftwood, and Mr, Richard Woods, of Coudersport, were married at the home of the bride's parents, on Monday morning at eight o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McAvenue in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Miss Clara Dougherty of Driftwood was bridesmaid. and Charles Leutze of Emporium was best man. The wedded couple left on the afternoon train for Coudersport, where their home is ready furnished. Mr. Woods has a position in one of the stores in Coudersport. Mrs. Woods who is a highly esteemed young lady has the best wishes of her many friends.

Messrs. S. P. Kreider and John Gleason spent several days of this week in Philadelphia.

William Corbett, of Northumberland, spent a few days in this vicinity, hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Hause and their son Richard, spent a few days of last week in DuBois.

Thomas Vrooman who has been ill with pneumonia is nearly well again.

J. W. Hopper and son were in town on Friday and Saturday evenings, with their moving pictures. The entertainments were quite well attended.

LaFrance O'Connor, of Williamsport High School, visited his mother for a few days of last week.

A new belfry has greatly improved the appearance of the Methodist Church of this place.

About twenty-six deer and several bears have been killed in this vicinity since the hunting season has opened. Among the fortunate hunters of this place are Messrs. Ben. Nefcy, Frank Smith, Dan Kilburn, Clyde Collins, Hoy Wilson, Warren Fisher, Alfred Robinson and Mr. Duell, of Castle Garden, who shot a large deer, which was only a short distance from his farm.

SINNAMAHONING.

Counsil Brothers are rushing their store building along to get ready for the holidays.

Geo. P. Shafer is still improving the Sinnamahoning House. Hyde & Murphy, the contractors, are looking after the work.

Geo. Dexter, engineer on the B. & S., was home this week to take his annual deer hunt.

The bad case of buck fever is dying out. Surely it struck this town pretty hard.

O. C. Spence, of Driftwood, was a visitor Monday. He was looking up chickens for Thanksgiving.

We hear that beef and pork are getting cheaper, but the low prices have not struck the town yet.

Potatoes and buckwheat flour are the articles that have dropped in price.

J. D. Counsil has taken his annual deer hunt and is now helping rush the work on his his new store.

R. M. Logue, of Oneida, N. Y., is in town this week, visiting his many relatives and friends. It is three years since he was here.

J. R. Batchelder, assessor for Grove Township, was a visitor at the county seat, Tuesday.

A. J. Barclay went to Round Island Tuesday to look over some timber land.

The PRESS readers are sure to call at the greatest store—Crum Brothers—for everything suitable for the Holidays. If they don't have what you want it will be useless to look elsewhere. Their bargains this year are great, as well as their stock.

"Pap" Blodget went to Lock Haven Tuesday, to get some teeth extracted.

Hustin Murray, of Nesbet, was in town on Tuesday looking up some timber land.

G. H. Wolfe, of Lewisburg, is visiting his brother, J. F. Wolfe, this week, also taking his annual hunt.

A large number of fine deer have been killed around here.

Edward Myder killed a six pronged buck, Tuesday, at Panthers Rocks.

Arthur Barclay and Jim Batchelder captured the largest bear of the season last Wednesday.

Bears are not so plenty here this fall as they were last—only a few having been caught or killed.

Geo. Darren, O. L. Bailey and Link St. Clair ware after deer one day last week and they thought they had one. While St. Clair was looking into a hollow log and Bailey and Darrin were trying to look in, the deer jumped over the log, shook his flag at them and made his escape.

M. N. Crum stood and watched a big buck wink at him one day last week. He had his 32 special sighter at 2,600 yards and couldn't get a sight on him as he was too close. There is a long way between a deer's back and the heavens and bullets don't do much harm so high up.

J. F. Wolfe and party came in without any deer. Frank is looking pretty blue just now.
